Session Synopsis

“55% of CEOs said risk management will be the top priority over the next five years”

(Reference: Insights from the Global CEO study, IBM. Results based on interviews with 1,541 global leaders)

In the uncertain environment of world, risk management is becoming an important profession. Risk is not only a threat but in some cases risk can be an opportunity, which if handled in the proper way can help organizations in achieving strategic objectives.

This seminar will encompass an overview of risk communication, risk analysis, risk response planning and risk governance from a practical perspective as well as providing guidance for professionals interested in the Risk Management Professional (RMP) certification offered by the Project Management Institute (PMI). This seminar will be of value to a range of stakeholders from project managers, project sponsors, team leads and functional managers working in different industries.
